Influences:

Since 1997, my interest in the internet sparked my journey into web design, connecting me with a diverse network of professionals. This period was foundational, enriching my knowledge across design, programming, and art, leading me to engage in interactive movie production, game development, and app creation. My transition to graphic art in 2019 was marked by a profound experience in Tokyo, where a mysterious phenomenon reignited my deep-seated aspiration for art, driving me into an intense creative pursuit.

Artists I Admire:

Leonor Fini's liberated life and the structural beauty in Hans Bellmer's work deeply inspire me, introduced by Ryūichi Shibata. Most significantly, a mentor I met online taught me the universality of art as a natural form of communication, an ethos that deeply influences my work.

Future Aspirations and Vision:

My art is an exploration of surplus dimensions, blending my divine orientation with a fascination for physics and spirituality. I aim to reconcile the sacred with the secular, and through my work, restore harmony between humanity and nature. By weaving symbols of nature, human philosophy, and scientific theories, my art serves as a conduit between the inner sanctity and the outer complex reality, aspiring to connect viewers with deeper universal truths.
